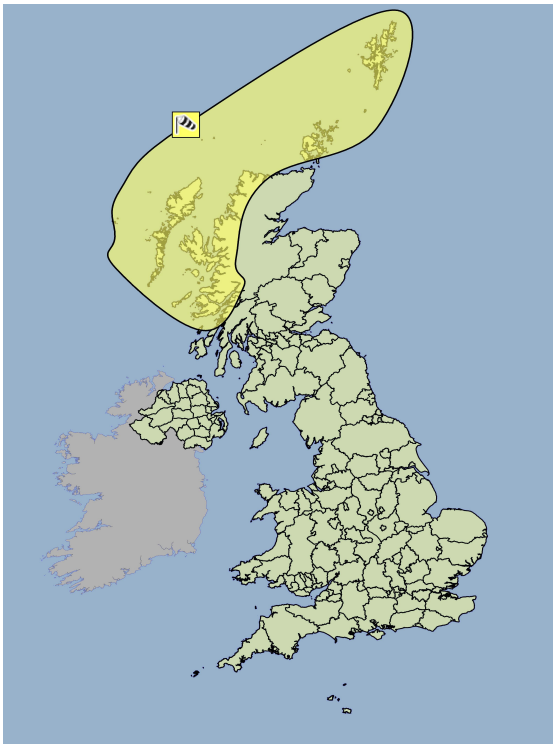
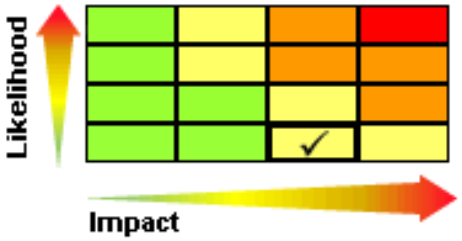
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Another vigorous area of low pressure is expected to pass close by northwest Scotland during Sunday, though there remain some differences between the computer models in the intensity of this development.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Wind

Valid from 10:00 on Sun, 15th Dec 2013 until 16:00 on Sun, 15th Dec 2013

Another spell of very windy weather is expected across the far north and northwest of Scotland on Sunday. There is potential for southerly gusts of 70 to 80 mph, and perhaps more in exposed parts of the Western Isles.

Large waves, particularly around times of high tide, may overtop exposed coasts and causeways.

There remains some uncertainty as to the extent of the very strong winds. However the public should be aware of the risk of further disruption to transport and other outdoor activities and are also advised to monitor the website for later updates.
